ABOUT CUMU

Since 1989, the Coalition of Urban and Metropolitan Universities (CUMU) has been dedicated to the creation and dissemination of knowledge between universities looking to develop responses to the pressing educational, economic, and social issues of the day. Our members share a passion for collaboration, student access and success, community development and revitalization, and discovery and innovation in teaching, learning, and research. CUMU is the longest-running and largest organization committed to serving and connecting the world's urban and metropolitan universities and their partners.

The needs of institutions located in urban and metropolitan areas are often different than more traditional colleges and universities. But with different needs come new opportunities, and universities from across the United States and Canada came together to learn, share, and benefit from the advantages of their unique locations.

AWARDEES

ERNEST A. LYNTON AWARD FOR THE SCHOLARSHIP OF ENGAGEMENT FOR EARLY CAREER FACULTY

Brook Lillehaugen, Assistant Professor and Haverford Chair of Linguistics, Haverford College

Sponsored by the Swearer Center at Brown University in partnership with the Coalition of Urban and Metropolitan Universities, the annual Ernest A. Lynton Award for the Scholarship of Engagement for Early Career Faculty recognizes a full-time faculty member who is pre-tenure at tenure-granting campuses or early career (i.e., within the first six years) at campuses with long-term contracts, and who connects their teaching, research and service to community engagement.

Dr. Lillehaugen was nominated by Haverford College President, Kimberly W. Benston, and Executive Director of the Center for Peace and Global Leadership, Eric Hartman, who noted in their nomination that, "Dr. Lillehaugen's embrace of ethical community engagement is complete; her relationships and collaborations throughout various Zapotec communities inform a breadth of work too long to list in full," and that her "intentional collaboration is an example of the way in which Brook's engagement thoughtfully de-centers the conventional epistemology of higher education."

Learn more about Dr. Lillegaugen's work at her session October 23, 3:30–4:00 PM in Wilton South

BARBARA A. HOLLAND SCHOLAR-ADMINISTRATOR AWARD

Emily Janke, Director of the Institute for Community and Economic Engagement and Associate Professor in the Peace and Conflict Studies department, University of North Carolina at Greensboro

Sponsored by CUMU, the annual Barbara A. Holland Scholar-Administrator Award honors a bold, mid-career scholar-administrator whose leadership and intellectual voice illuminates the transformative power of urban and metropolitan higher education in the lives of individuals and communities. Holland Scholars are respected, strategic leaders across their institution who are known for contributing to cutting-edge research related to their administrative role.

Dr. Janke was nominated by Dr. Terri Shelton, Vice Chancellor for Research and Engagement at UNCG. In her nomination, she writes, "Dr. Janke has demonstrated her commitment to community engagement in leading strategic planning, spearheading our Carnegie application, in changing promotion and tenure guidelines, . . . and in encouraging a deeper understanding of quality CE across our state and in the nation" and that she "epitomizes the qualities of Barbara and has worked tirelessly to advance the values and insights that Barbara has been advocating for."

The University of Chicago, like many urban universities, is located amidst struggling communities that continue to endure the consequences of racial and economic segregation. URBAN EDUCATION AS RACIALIZED STATE VIOLENCE: WHAT IS THE ROLE OF HIGHER EDUCATION

Pauline Lipman
Professor, University of Illinois at Chicago

Mass school closings disproportionately take place in minority or low-income neighborhoods and have a destabilizing effect. Paired with privatization efforts, this lack of investment negatively affects Latinx, African-American, and low-income families and contributes to the overall disinvestment in these communities. Pauline Lipman examines the intersection of politics, economics, race, and education.

TUESDAY, OCTOBER 23, 2018

In Chicago, young people of color struggle around basic needs, joblessness, poorly funded schools, housing unaffordability, gun violence and inadequate access to social and health services. Panelists from the University of Illinois at Chicago will discuss research that addresses these issues; what it takes to engage in the co-production of research; creating and compiling data; and tying research conclusions to program and policy relevant applications.

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 24, 2018

Bethany Miller

As higher education institutions expand partnerships for deeper impact, external support is necessary for sustainability. Support from the philanthropic community is critical, however, making connections and accessing resources can be challenging. Private, community, and corporate foundation leaders will discuss why they have chosen to invest in university-community partnerships and share how universities can work more effectively with community partners.
